ENGAGE WITH IIIP

Do you work for an organization based outside of the USA doing work that could engage students? Could your organization benefit from a bright, motivated Lehigh student working on specific projects? Are you interested in mentoring young professionals while expanding your organization's future recruiting or fundraising network? Consider hosting a talented Lehigh student intern!

The Iacocca International Internship Program \(IIIP\) works with host organizations around the world to provide practical work experience, grounded in a global context, aimed at enhancing students' career readiness and intercultural competency. In the first 11-years of the program, 700 students have worked in organizations located across 58 countries. IIIP partners with NGOs, multinational companies, government agencies, institutes of higher education, etc. to host students. There is no cost to the host organization. IIIP covers the majority of the students' expenses - including airfare, transportation, housing, meals and incidentals. IIIP also provides student and supervisor support before, during and after the internship.

GREECE

IIIP has a long-standing, successful program model for student experiential learning through international internships, which includes an eight-month student-driven learning curriculum. To date, IIIP has sent 700 students to intern across 58 countries, which has not yet included Greece. We are eager to partner to send Lehigh student interns to Greece.

Key Areas of Potential Collaboration:

- Theme-based internships, on topics such as: population migration, environmental sustainability, community development, developing economic structure, entrepreneurialism, ESL or other timely topics
- Internship opportunities in business or health disciplines
- Potential to partner with other higher education institutions for joint internships (for example, two Lehigh student interns and two X student interns)
- Higher student demand for industry-based internships vs. research internships at the university level
