Form I-129 - Deemed Export Attestation

Introduction: U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) recently put into effect a new form I-129, “Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker”, which will require a change in procedure for the hiring of non-immigrant aliens as faculty and staff. Through the new Part 6 of the I-129, USCIS - for the first time - requires employers to certify their compliance with deemed export licensing requirements as part of the visa application process for certain nonimmigrant workers. As a legal matter, little has changed, as employers of nonimmigrant workers have long been subject to export control laws. Yet as a practical matter, this new part of the I-129 forces colleges and universities to address export compliance earlier in the hiring process, and will require increased cooperation between University administrators and faculty across departments.

General Overview: U.S. law prohibits the “export” of controlled technology and technical data to certain foreign nationals located within the United States (“deemed export”) without a license. U.S. law treats as an export the release of controlled technology or technical data to a foreign national working in the United States, even if the employer does not engage in any other exporting activities. Technology or source code is considered “released” for export when it is made available to foreign nationals for visual inspection (such as reading technical specifications, plans, blueprints, etc.); when technology is exchanged orally; or when technology is made available by practice or application under the guidance of persons with knowledge of the technology. Such exports of controlled technology or technical data must be authorized through an export license issued by USCIS or the Directorate of Defense Trade Controls before release to the non-immigrant foreign national.

Thus, to properly complete the new Part 6 Certification of the I-129 form, an employer must evaluate the technology or technical data that will be released to, or be accessed by, a prospective foreign national employee. In order for the Office of the General Counsel to conduct this evaluation prior to the filing of any I-129, the principal investigator/Lehigh University sponsor (or faculty member administrative director for non-academic positions) and department chair must complete the attached Visa Deemed Export Questionnaire.

Furthermore, each departmental chair must continue to monitor foreign nationals working in the department to ensure that changes in job functions or departmental operations do not pose a risk of the employee accessing restricted technology. Implementing this process will ensure that the necessary information is communicated between departments that hire foreign nationals and the university officials that are responsible for processing the I-129 so that compliance with immigration and export control requirements is maintained.

If you have questions regarding the I-129, the Visa Deemed Export Questionnaire, or deemed exports, please contact the Office of the General Counsel at 8-3572.
