Iacocca Internship:

INDONESIA

Lehigh students will be placed in internships alongside UGM university students, UGM faculty, and local community representatives in and near Yogyakarta City on one of three community development projects.

These community development projects include:
1 - Performance improvement of small and medium-sized batik-making enterprises and tourism development,
2 - Community empowerment to develop local economic growth through medicinal herbs cultivation, and
3 - Community facilitation of the Increased Revenue for Family Welfare movement.

Each of these projects has a significant women’s empowerment component.

Program Dates:
June 29th – August 20th

Seeking:
Undergraduate students studying Global Studies, Gender Studies, Asian Studies, Islam/Religious Studies, Sociology, Business/Entrepreneurship, and related programs. Graduate students studying education, particularly Comparative and International Education program masters or doctoral students, including graduate students from across the COE’s academic programs who are interested in community and youth development in international and cross-cultural contexts.
